

The Inn at Norwood

"A Romantic B&B"

About the Inn

The Inn at Norwood is centrally located in the heart of Historic Sykesville, Maryland. Built in 1906 by the architect J.H. Fowble, The Inn at Norwood is a Colonial Revival home retaining much of its original charm. Mr. Fowble built many of the buildings in the town of Sykesville, but he built the Inn as his family's residence. Relax on the front porch overlooking the town, or just snuggle up in the parlor with a good book. The entire inn has been newly renovated. The six guest rooms all have private baths with 2-person Jacuzzi tubs, cable TV/VCR's, fireplaces, air conditioning, and internet connections.

About the Town

The Town of Sykesville is on the National Register of Historic places. The quaint town was named for James Sykes, who purchased the land from George Patterson. The town has a completely restored Railroad Station which was originally built in 1884 and is now a restaurant. Sykesville has much to offer: great restaurants, a museum, hiking and biking trails, fishing, antique shops and much more.
